BASEBALL
FORE and 'AFT

While we have never revealed the identity of "George," we are sure many of you have sometimes realized it was a member of the Chick family. In his swan song the columnist has let the chips fall where they may and we feel that as columnist he is entitled to this prerogative.

His opinions do not necessarily reflect those of this paper.

This is the beginning of the end. The end of the baseball columns for the '47 season; that is. By a strange bit of fate, we are not in the play-offs; and so, like nomads, we pick up our suitcases and start on our journey. Very few of the boys have any idea where they will be next year. A few will return for another season in Fulton. Others will go to a higher class of baseball, and still others will give up the game, completely. There are a few things I'd like to say before I leave Fulton, and if you'll bear with me, I'll tell you what they are.

First, I would like to say a few words to the people who have given the Chicks a place in their homes. People like Mrs. Tom White, Mrs. Pearl Cooley, the Thos. Exum's Mrs. S. L. Brown, Mrs. Elizabeth Shankle, Mrs. Leland Jewell, Mrs. Cheatem, and others. It's not easy to go to a strange town, hunt for a room, and try to get along with everybody concerned. We've all done things to aggravate you . . . like splashing water all over the place in the bathrooms, leaving our rooms untidy, banging doors, and countless other things. You have all been very patient with us, and we do appreciate it. Those of us who have been fortunate enough to have kitchen privileges appreciate your hospitality even more so. I would recommend any one of you to the most particular people in existence. You are all good housekeepers, and I know! Thanks a million . . . be as nice to the future Chicks as you have been to us, and there will be no complaints.

There are others whom I would like to thank. The Pete Roberts family, the Loays, the Crutchfields, Liz Wilkins, etc., who have done their very best to make their homes "open house" to us, and give us that "wanted" feeling . . . going out of their way to do little things for us, and making this a home away from home. Those little things that you've done didn't mean a thing to you, but they played a big part in our happiness, here. Thanks very much.

The Rushton's deserve a spot all their own. This restaurant eating as a steady diet, isn't always what it's cracked up to be. Most of the Chicks patronize Rushton's because of the friendly atmosphere, the good food, the right prices . . . but most of all because of Hugh Rushton, himself. He's one of the boys, and I know what the end of the season means to him. No more laughs about errors, no more worrying about getting them to the ballpark on time . . . no more! We'll miss you too, Rushton . . . and we know that next year you'll give the new Chicks that same smile and service. I wish they had a Rushton's Restaurant in every baseball town.

There are a lot more thank you's that I could insert here, but there isn't enough room in this issue to put them all.

On the other hand, there are a few other things on my mind. One is that it makes baseball players very miserable to stop them on the street and say, "why did you make that error, last night?" Look, Mister, if he knew why he wouldn't have made it in the first place. Keep remembering that the boys do their best for you in every game . . . if their best isn't good enough for you, then don't go to the games . . . you'll be a lot better off and so will they.

I realize that Fulton is a very small town. We realize, too, that we are part of the public domain. Which does not necessarily mean

Little
Phoebe

"I s'pect we'd better speak to Mr. Durbin about it," said the lightning bug to the owl as they contemplated ways and means to build a new clubhouse, on the Country Club grounds.

But Lil Phoebe just laughed and laughed and because she knew that the wise old owl had suggested parking meters for the courtin' couples out Country Club way as a means to raise funds for the new clubhouse.

FULTON, KENTUCKY, FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 5, 1947

NUMBER FORTY-THREE

ST. EDWARDS CHURCH INAUGURATES SCHOOL;
EIGHT GRADES ON SCHOOL'S CURRICULUM

There's a new school bell ringing in Fulton today. It rang for the first time in Fulton's history yesterday and to some of the ladies of the St. Edwards Catholic Church here, it sounds even sweeter than the carillon chimes of the Bok Tower. Its not because the ladies were not supremely satisfied with the local school system, because they are indeed, it's because the beginning of a parochial school here is the epitome of real "pioneering."

Way back when services were held in the homes of the various parishioners, because the church population was too small to erect a church building, there were those who dreamed of having an edifice not only to worship, but to give their youngsters a religious education.

And dreams do come true. But these dreams, as all dreams, needed real hard work to make them a realization.

It all started about eighteen months ago, when a delegation composed of Mrs. C. H. McDaniels, Mrs. Glenn Dunn, Mrs. Clint Maxfield, and Mrs. Guy Haney inspired by the mediocre beginning of other schools that resulted in large systems, called upon the Most Rev. Francis R. Cotten, Bishop of Owensboro, who was conducting confirmation services at Hickman.

Enthusiastic at the outset of the short drive to Hickman, they became a little less brave at the thought of encountering so high a church dignitary, and were it not for the encouragement of a little nun at the Catholic Rectory there, it is possible that the school today might still be a dream.

Their fears were soon allayed however, for His Excellency saw no reason why Fulton should not have a school, and immediately instituted proceedings to get the project in motion. Perhaps the greatest factor in bringing the school into being was the house on Eddings street, next to church, which had been offered for sale.

The property was purchased. A generous donation was received from a Catholic lay organization as well as some financial help from the Bishop. Fortified with finances, an indefatigable spirit and a will, the school is a reality.

Today there are three sizes of desks in the little white schoolhouse on Eddings. There are three Dominican nuns from St. Catherine, Ky., who will teach eight grades and kindergarten to children of the parish, as well as to several non-Catholic children who have already registered.

Rev. Thomas A. Libs, pastor of the local church, as well as the church at Hickman, where a school has operated successfully for many years, has been the motivating factor in surmounting the Herculean task of securing teachers, school furniture, books and other items needed to accommodate the pupils.

At the present there will be no tuition for children of the parish attending the school. A nominal tuition charge is made for non-Catholics taking advantage of the school's facilities.

In naming Mr. Westpheling to the committee to Mr. Bingham said: "This new agency for unified state action needs and merits the support of all Kentuckians. It especially wants the advice and counsel of State and community leaders, like yourself, in the planning and guidance of its very ambitious program of industrial expansion."

"For this reason I hope you will agree to serve with me as a member of the Public Relations Committee. You can be of invaluable assistance to us, and to Kentucky, in lending your counsel to the furtherance of the State chamber's objectives."

'LOST' FALSE TEETH
AT 'DEAR RUTH'
PREVIEW

"Not a word of lie," they would say in Seneca Falls, and we hate to talk about the same thing again, but there's a stray plate of false teeth in the custody of Joe Brown at the Malco found in the theatre after the "sneak preview" of "Dear Ruth."

There's only one conclusion to reach and that is that the movie was so doggone funny that the gent or lady, laughed so hard that they haven't thought about the uppers.

Joe is an accommodating fellow, however, and has posted the plate on an attractive placard so that the owner may easily identify the food-chewers.

Suppose that guy still laughing and hasn't missed the "choppers" yet?

Information and application forms may be secured from the Commission's Local Secretary, Mr. J. C. Sugg Jr., located at Fulton, Ky., from most first-and-second-class post offices, from Civil Service regional offices, or from the U. S. Civil Service Commission, Washington 25, D. C. Applications must be received in the Commission's Washington office not later than September 23, 1947.

Most of Bonds Already
Cashed, Banks Report

Approximately $50,000 in terminal leave bonds had been cashed at both Fulton banks through Thursday evening, it was learned in a survey made by the News here today. The Fulton Bank reported that nearly $14,000 in bonds had been cashed, while the City National Bank reported an approximate total of $39,000.

Largest bond cashed in the city so far was at the Fulton Bank which amounted to $648.90. The bank reported that the majority of the receipts from the bonds were used to pay off bank indebtednesses, furniture notes, car accounts, etc. Then there were many who just wanted the feel of cash in their pockets. Largest bond cashed at the City National Bank was $625.

Clyde Williams Sr., vice-president and cashier of the City National Bank and Russell Pitchford, who holds a similar position with the Fulton Bank jointly reported that the banks had ample cash to take care of the cash "run." No additional currency was necessary to meet the demands. The reserve balance carried by the individual banks took care of the cash-ins.

There was much debate in Congress at the time, only a year ago, of the inflationary dangers of putting such a high additional sum into circulation. Now, however, Congress and the government have been soft-peddling such talk. They say the amount insignificant compared to what this country is spending each year. And that it will have only slight inflationary tendencies.

The Commerce Department isn't so sure. It believes many of the veterans will use their bond money as down payments on heavy goods, such as automobiles, refrigerators, homes, etc.

Whatever use the money is being put to, the government is making it as easy as possible for the ex-GIs to collect the cash. All they have to do is take the bonds and their discharge papers to the nearest bank, sign the bonds. And they get their money.

But if they want to hold on to the bonds, there are several additional advantages they can get, besides the two and one-half per cent interest. For one thing, interest from the bonds is tax-exempt. Another thing, they are completely personal piece of property. No claims can be laid against them. Not even the United States Government.

S. J. REED PUTS PRIZE CATTLE IN LOUISVILLE SHOW

S. J. Reed, of the Samjo Farm in this county has again entered his prize Bourbon beefs in the annual $5000 Bourbon Beef Show held annually in Louisville, Ky. it was revealed today.

The general manager of the $5,000 Bourbon Beef Show, Jas. R. "Buck" Rash, Jr., recently visited Fulton county to inspect the cattle entered here in this year's show.

The Bourbon Beef Show will be held December 11th and 12th at the Bourbon Stockyards in Louisville. The grand champion single steer or heifer will receive $1,000 as will the champion carload of 15 head. Five hundred dollars go to the reserve grand champion single steer or heifer and to the second prize carload. Forty three other prizes totaling $2,000 more make the $4,000 offered the richest fat stock show in the South.

All cattle entered in the Bourbon Beef Show are being fattened on balanced rations containing either distillers dried grains or distillers dried solubles. These two protein rich feeds are produced abundantly in Kentucky and the Bourbon Beef Association is anxious that Kentucky's farmers benefit to a greater extent from these home produced feeds.

After his inspection trip Mr. Rash made the following comments about the Bourbon Bees entered from this area:

Mr. Reed did so well with one shorthorn steer last year that he has two entered in the show this year. They are doing nicely."

HOWELL, Mrs. R. L. 81, August 28 at her home in Troy after a long illness.

Funeral services were held at the Obion Methodist church with the Rev. Geo. Mellisain of Dyer officiating. Burial was in the Rose Hill cemetery.

She is survived by her husband, R. L. Howell; three children: Mrs. M. R. Thompson of Obion, Cecil Howell of Troy and Hamp Howell of Paris; seven grandchildren, six great-grandchildren; and one brother, Jim Harmon of Pleasant Hill.

This Story Is Confidentially For Women Only.... About Knees!

Longer skirts, less padding on the shoulders, tiny waistslines, rounded full hips and very full or narrow hemlines reminiscent of by-gone days are in the stars for midday this season. The complete transition of styles has brought an added wrinkle or two to the fair sex generally, but nary a chirp has been heard in this balliwick from Fulton ladies.

Nationally quite a rumpus has been raised what with "little below the knee" clubs being formed here and about though it is not yet known what effect the demonstration will have on New York and Paris designers.

Here in Fulton Mrs. Guy Irby of Irby's Fashion Shop says that apparently it has had no effect, for her line of fall fashions are coming in as designed by the fashion experts—with one exception—there is padding in the shoulders.

"Early fall shoppers are taking the new fashions in their stride," she told a News reporter, "and really the ladies are a little disappointed that the padding is there again this year. The ladies are going to wear their dresses longer, don't you worry. I have had a few dissenters," she added, smilingly, "but knowing women as I do I'm leaving the excess material right in the hem-line, so when they change their mind, as they surely will do, the material will be there."

Now that's a lady with a vision! A little peek into the viewpoint of the gracious ladies who will wear the garments, we hear from Mrs. Maxwell McDade that the calamitous transition is present in a real problem in her life. Petite and five feet one-and-a-half, she avers that the longer hemlines will do nothing toward making her look like a Grecian model.

"Those long waistslines, those long coats . . . mighosh I just don't know what I'll do. But we'll all fall in line, we're just that gullible."

It's a good thing this article is for women only, what would the men folks think about our herd-like attitude.

Short, sweet and to the point, Martha Moore, assistant in the office of the Kentucky Utilities, says in no uncertain terms:

"You couldn't print what I thought about the new fall styles."

Reckon as now she's a little disturbed about those stunning new things she bought last season. And who isn't?

The new fall styles result in a silhouette entirely different from that seen in recent years, the clothing specialists say.

"Most striking of the changes is the longer skirt," said Mrs. Clarice Thorpe of the Clarice Shop as she recommended mid-calf as the approved length, rather than any certain distance from the foot.

"Although padding in shoulders will continue to be used, it will be smoother and rounder, making the shoulders look narrower and more natural," she said. "Nipped-in waistslines give a rounded look to the hips."

Yet there are those who think that they're here, "leave us alone." One is Mrs. Wilmon Boyd, executive secretary of the Chamber of Commerce who says she thinks the styles are just grand and she's for them 100 percent.

"I like everything about them! The droopy shoulders, the small waistslines, and the longer hemlines. Furthermore, its time for a change."

Similar thinking was expressed by Virginia Howard in the business girl's department who said:

"Let's folks wear what they want. If they look good in the new dresses and can buy them, more power to them. If not, I'm sure they won't be pushed off of the sidewalks."

But her's a little secret. The local laundries tell us that there is many a garment brought in to them with the hem let out, with the admonition to be sure and press it so that it won't look like it's been let out.

And for all you menfolks, nosy curious, but lovable who have been reading this story, don't sit there snickering. We hear that the great, big, broadshouldered appearance you've been making is going to change, too. You won't look so pretty in those short breeches and droopy shoulders, either.

Weather Brings Mildew Problem

How to prevent mildew and do away with musty odors resulting from humid weather are problems for housewives. The best offense, according to home economists at the UK college of agriculture and home economics, is to be sure clothing and household linens are dry before they are tossed in the clothes hamper or put away in dresser drawers, and to keep closets, dresser drawers and basements as clean, dry and well aired as possible.

Mildew, a fungus growth, gets its start in damp, dark unventilated places, eventually eating into the fibers of the cloth, causing permanent damage. An electric light left burning in the closets may dry the atmosphere enough to prevent mildew, or an electric fan set in the doorway will stir up the air and bring in a fresh supply.

An open jar of calcium chloride in the closet will absorb excess moisture, but must be replaced frequently as it changes from a solid to a liquid. A generous handful of charcoal will absorb musty odors. To remove fresh mildew stains in household linens, wash them in soapsuds and follow with sunning. If that is not effective, lemon juice and salt, followed by sunning, may be. A more drastic treatment is to soak the piece for a half hour in a solution of four tablespoons of sodium perborate to a pint of water, followed by thorough rinsing and sunning.

Leather goods, floors and woodwork may be protected against mildew by waxing dry surfaces. To do away with musty odors in basements and cellars, sprinkle chloride of lime over the floor, sweeping it up when the mustiness has disappeared.

It is not well to see everything, to hear everything; let many causes of offense pass by us unnoticed.—Seneca.

You must control evil thoughts in the first instance, or they will control you in the second.—Mary Baker Eddy.

There is . . . nothing that keeps the heart young like sympathy, like giving oneself with enthusiasm to some worthy thing or cause.—Anonymous.

" . . . How Green Is This Valley "

We have had a few short days of September, that beautiful month when the leaves begin to fall and that heralds the beginning of the fall season.

As we peck at this typewriter and look through the window of our shop on the cars that drive in to Bob White's for gasoline, at Pressley Campbell's newly painted laundry building, at the stream of factory workers by whose daily passing you could set your watches, we think back by comparison to the urban areas, where folks are not quite so happy.

In the city—take Washington for instance—life is something like this. Up at 6:45, a quick shower, a quick breakfast to the strains of the street cars clanging, the auto horns honking and the busses screeching. Then a mad dash to the bus stop for the 7:45 express that whizzes by with that familiar placard on the windshield "bus loaded." Standing on one foot and then the other, pushing your way to the head of the queue that formed and trying to read the morning paper all at the same time, a bus finally stops and you clamor aboard to stare with the others at those expressionless faces that spell monotony.

If your job is an outside one, you fight public transportation, pedestrians, automobiles and taxicabs. If you're inside you fight office politics, red tape, routine, stagnation. In either or both you fight the terrific cost of living, the tragic living conditions, the lack of neighborly friendship of the small community.

And the folks with children have the most "fun." A two-by-four play pen in the back of the apartment building, within easy reach of alley traffic, the garbage collector and the ruffian next door. You can't choose your neighborhood, you know.

But maybe you get a nice neighborhood, conducive to wholesome living for the youngsters, its an hour's trek to town in the morning and the same in the evening fighting the etc. etc. etc.

It's a fighting life, period.

In Fulton, or in any small town, things are different. Its four minutes to the office. Your neighbors bring flowers while you're moving and offer hot water and the use of the refrigerator until the current is turned on. A stroll down Lake street brings a cheery "hello" with nearly every step you take. And how's the baby, and wasn't that a good sermon Brother Mischke preached. Its that see-you-at-the-ballgame-how-about-a-coke, kind of existence that makes life worth while.

We're agrarians really. We want to be the "grass roots" that the city folks talk about. We want to write about what the Palestine Homemakers do, the progress being made by the Farm Bureau, why the Chicks hit a slump, how well our boys and girls are doing at school. It was to be a part of a community like Fulton that we saved our pennies and nickels to someday chuck the big jobs in the cities, to do a real job where little things are big things to us!

Yes, its September. The evenings will soon be cool enough to feel a breeze that doesn't have to wend its way through the skyscrapers, alleys and fire escapes. There'll be a little addition to the family to help us enjoy this living in the not too distant future.

How green is this valley. That's why we're in Fulton.

that we should be stomped upon. What we do is still our own affair. Even as part of the public domain, many of the boys felt as though they deserved even the slightest deference to public property. People who live in plastic houses should never throw acetone.

I've said what was on my mind, and want you to know that as a whole, we have enjoyed our season here in Fulton. I've blasted away in some of these columns, but my efforts sometimes bore fruits. There were those of you who jumped on our band wagon when we were winning, and just as quickly, jumped off when we were losing. We hold no malice toward you, only the hope that you will try to be as good sports as your Chicks tried to be, in the future.

In singing loudly, this "swan song" we have a few items that we would like to mention in our last will and testament.

To K. P. Dalton we leave the good wishes and sincere regards of the entire Chick staff.

To Hugh Rushton we leave the combined good dispositions of all of us that he may continue to make the "out-of-townners" a part of his big family.

To "Happy" Hogan we leave a wish that someday he may have a store as large as Barnum and Bailey circus tent so that others may have the joy of his pleasant "hang-out."

Ditto for good ole Mr. Evans at Evans Drug Store.

To Bob Binford an honorary degree of medicine, cum laude, for all of the times he has administered aid to the aches and pains of the boys.

To Hugh Fly and Frank Clark an honorary degree of RPE, (resauranteur par excellence) for their extra curricular kindnesses.

To Erl Sensing, my sympathy.

To the Fulton County News, a promise that if I'm back next year, I'll have my copy in on time, maybe.

To Fulton, the pleasure of having a pennant winning ball team. We certainly did our best.

CORN-BORER DAMAGE
FOUND IN KENTUCKY

The European corn borer, found in 71 Kentucky counties last year, and probably present in a larger number of counties this season, has become a serious corn pest, according to a new bulletin of the Agricultural Experiment Station at Lexington. Yields were reduced by the borer last year, especially in the Bluegrass region.

The borer tunnels through stalks and also eats grain and leaves. The weakened stalks often break and the ears fall to the ground. Besides field corn, sweet corn, potatoes and gladioli are injured.

In Kentucky, the borer has two broods a year, and sometimes three. Eggs of the first brood are laid the latter part of May and in June when earliest-planted corn is one to five feet high. Second-brood eggs are laid from middle July into early September.

To reduce damage, the bulletin recommends planting adapted hybrid corns early in May. Corn planted late in May is likely to be injured by second-brood borers.

Since the borer overwinters in cornstalks, crop remnants should be destroyed before moths emerge in May. Where corn is cut and shocked, it is recommended that early and low cutting be done. Shredding of corn tends to destroy the borers. Where stalks are left in the field, deep and clean plowing should be done and all trash well covered.

Where borers are present in any numbers, land with cornstalks or high corn stubble should never be merely disked and planted to small grain or other cover crops, it is pointed out.

RICE RETIRES FROM FARM CREDIT ADM.

Ernest Rice, general agent of the Farm Credit Administration of Louisville for the past 15 years, retires under Civil Service regulations on August 31, according to an announcement from the district office at Louisville.

A native of Tennessee, where he practiced law and for many years represented his district in the State Senate, Rice first became identified with units of the Farm Credit Administration 24 years ago. In 1923 he was elected by national farm loan associations to the board of directors of the Federal Land Bank and Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of Louisville.

When the district Farm Credit

Administration for Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky and Tennessee was established in 1923 to include the Production Credit Corporation and Bank Cooperatives as well as the two units already operating, Rice became general agent. Except for two years of this period he has also served as president of the Federal Land Bank.

Roundhouse Round-Up
By Alice Clark

Hello folks. Here we are Friday morning with that Roundhouse Roundup, what we all want to see in the News. Well this week in place of giving a safety rule we are going to read what is in the safety news published by the Illinois Central Mechanical Department. It is headed the "big and little things of life," and shows a picture of an elephant head and reads as follows: "Take care of the little things and the big things will take care of themselves."

This old saying sure hits the bull's eye in accident prevention. We don't seem to get hot and bothered about unsafe conditions until a big accident comes along, then everyone starts cleaning up and taking care of those smaller things so it won't happen again.

One man boasted he made $17,000 commissions selling fire extinguishers in Chicago after the Big La Salle Hotel fire, but they were needed long before the fire.

Now is the time to take care of those little things that may cause big accidents. Report at once every unsafe condition you find which you can't immediately correct yourself.

Locking the door after the horse is stolen is necessary in safety, but it is working backward. "It is the steady prevention of accidents that is the big things in safety work."

Autos have killed 769,000 people since the turn of the century, reports the National Safety Council.

So all automobile owners let's remember: "A child may dare so let's all drive with care."

And another thing to remember is "A thinking driver doesn't drink, a drinking driver doesn't think."

Mrs. Arthur Matheny and daughter, wife and daughter of machinist, left Monday morning for Dallas, Texas for a visit with Mrs. Matheny's sister.

We welcome H. W. Worthan to Fulton. Mr. Worthan has been appointed assistant train master, Cairo district, replacing F. A. Fitzpatrick, who has been promoted to trainmaster at Vicksburg, Miss.

We also welcome C. C. Cannon, who has been appointed traveling engineer, Blufford, Carbondale, Eldorado, Johnson, Zeigler and Goldconda districts, with headquarters at Fulton, succeeding J. H. Wilson, who has been appointed traveling engineer, Cairo, Birmingham, Jackson and Winfield districts with headquarters at Jackson, Tenn., succeeding J. L. Harrington, who is retiring after fifty two years of faithful and efficient service.

"Retonga Proved Its Worth To Me" She Says

Mrs. Wakefield Is Able To Go Up Town Now, She Feels So Much Stronger. Eats Anything Again. Sleeps All Night And Feels Fine.

"I could tell from the second day I took Retonga that I had found the right medicine at last," declares Mrs. J. O. Wakefield, well-known resident of 25 Middleton Ave., Nashville, Tenn.

"Everything I ate seemed to lie in my stomach for hours before it started to digest," states Mrs. Wakefield. "Then it seemed to me that I could actually feel gas forming and I would soon feel so bloated and uncomfortable that I could not even get much sleep at night. I had to take strong laxatives regularly, I felt weakened and run down, and my resistance was so low that I seemed forever with a cold. "I wouldn't be able to go up town now if Retonga hadn't given me such grand relief. I have a fine appetite, eat anything I want and sleep the whole night through. I haven't had a cold in weeks, the sluggish elimination is relieved, and I feel fine. Retonga is the best medicine I ever used in my life."

Retonga is intended to relieve distress due to loss of appetite, insufficient flow of digestive juices in the stomach, Vitamin B-1 deficiency, and constipation. Accept no substitute. Retonga may be obtained at the City Drug Co., in Fulton.

Mrs. J. C. Foster

We have had some nice showers the past two weeks and the long drought has broken at last. Crops revived and greatly benefited in some areas, especially the pastures, which means an increase in milk and cream for that we are truly thankful.

No change in the condition of J.C. Foster or aunt Mollie Brann. Perhaps cooler weather will bring that about, and we trust for the better.

Mrs. E. C. Lowry has been put to bed by her physician because of a leg ailment and varicose veins.

Johnny Conntz and wife and H. A. Sisk and family left Saturday for their respective homes in Michigan after a ten day vacation with home folks.

Mrs. Dora Newton, Water Valley, Mrs. Fred Bennett and Miss Nell Bennett visited with Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Sisk and Mr. and Mrs. Roy McGinnis at J. C. Foster's Friday afternoon. Other to visit them were P. J. Brann and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Hester Bennett, and Mrs. G. W. Brann, T. W. Weems, Dean Williams, wife and children.

SOUTH FULTON

Mrs. Ruby Neisler

Again September is here. The school bells are ringing and calling the children back to school and study. For some of them it is their first day in school. How eagerly they enter, yet a little shy for it is all a mystery to them. But day by day the things of life will unfold and after the twelve school years much yet to learn.

South Fulton opened with a good attendance, but it is impossible to give the exact number at such an early date. We wish for the faculty as well as the pupils and parents, a great school year.

This is the first time in thirty-two years that your correspondent has not had a child to go to school, but my heart and interest is with the school.

We regret to announce that Mr. J. W. Smith one of the oldest or perhaps the oldest man in the community, is very ill in the Jones Hospital. His loved ones here hold no hope for his recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Barnes and sons, Norman and Alton and Misses Bonnie Dedmon and Hazel Beard spent the week-end at Monmouth Cave.

Bobby Berry drove his mother and Mrs. Sye Vancil out to Mrs. Vancil's old home out on the Martin Highway.

The recent guests of your writer were Mr. and Mrs. Win Burns and son, Bill, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Robert Burns and children, all of Union City and Mr. and Mrs. Leahmon Boulton and children of Fulton.

And lo, I am a proud grandmother. I have a beautiful little granddaughter, born Saturday morning in the Haws Memorial Hospital. She weighed seven pounds and ten ounces. Her name is Carole Ann Burns and she is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Burnes of Union City.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Newton were the dinner guests last Monday of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Newton. They also had as their week-end guests their daughter, Mrs. Beaton Mc-

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

The use of a cheese sauce on practically any vegetable adds to its flavor and food value. Cauliflower, onions, broccoli, cabbage, carrots, potatoes and asparagus are particularly good served in this manner. Miss Florence Omlay, specialist in foods at the UK college of agriculture and home economics, suggests this recipe.

Cauliflower with Cheese Sauce

1 medium sized cauliflower
2 cups milk
4 tablespoons butter
4 tablespoons flour
1 1/2 cups grated cheese
1/2 teaspoon salt

Cook the cauliflower upside down in boiling salted water until tender, 12 to 15 minutes. Drain. Make a white sauce of the butter, flour and milk. When thickened, remove from the stove and add the grated cheese and salt. Place the drained cauliflower on a platter, pour the cheese sauce over it and surround with buttered carrots.

Note: A small, loosely packed head of cabbage may be cooked in the same way after removing outer leaves and core.

Menu: Smothered chicken, cauliflower with cheese sauce, buttered carrots, sliced tomato and green pepper salad, baking powder biscuits, butter and cantaloupe.

WINTER STORAGE IV.

Where specialized forms of winter vegetable storage are not practical, vegetables may be buried in pits. Building a pit storage is simple, but there are several points that bear discussing.

One great difficulty in pit storage is that sometimes the vegetables "sweat" so much that they heat and sprout and spoil. To get rid of moisture, this system of ventilating is suggested. It consists of a ventilator stack set in the middle of the pile of vegetables, the outlet vent, with four intake vents at the base of the pit. The stack may be a wooden tubular affair drilled with auger holes throughout its length, or merely a dozen saplings loosely tied together. The intakes are the ends of two shallow trenches crossing at right angles under the center of the pile, where the outlet stack has been set. These trenches should be covered with wire mesh or loose boards, and their ends with fine mesh to keep out field mice and the like. Between times of ventilating, the intakes are closed with a shovelful of each, and the top of the outlet stack wrapped with sacks and covered with tin to shed rain.

A modified pit, easier to open and close than the conventional type, is made by using a banana hamper as the outlet stack about which the vegetables, in sacks are piled, using trench-intakes as just described.

An in-between type of storage that resembles a pit and somewhat, too, a cave, is the submerged barrel. To make it, a circular hole is dug 10 inches deeper than the barrel is long and 12 inches wider than its longest distance through. Twelve inches of cinder, are poured in to fill the space about the barrel, its head extending two inches above the ground line.

The vegetables are stored in sacks, the contents of each identified by a tag. The barrel top is closed by stuffing with sacks, and covered with tin. This storage may be opened and closed regardless of weather.

BUMPER CORN CROP FOR WOLFE COUNTY

With many fields showing prospects of yielding 50 bushels to the acre, County Agent Chas. E. Gabard predicts Wolfe county will have one of its largest corn crops. He expects an average yield of 35 bushels to the acre, where as a few years ago 20 bushels was the average.

Planting hybrid varieties, using limestone, phosphate and fertilizers and growing cover crops are responsible for increased yields, says the county agent.

SHEEP PAY 4-H BOY

Tommy Phillips, a Simpson county 4-H club boy, had an income of $705.24 from 20 ewes, according to figures submitted to Sidney Delong, assistant county agent. His 25 lambs sold for $645.99 and he won $59.25 in prizes at the Tri-State lamb show at Evansville, Ind., and at the district show at Bowling Green.

DDT KILLS FLIES

A midsummer campaign to encourage Franklin county dairymen to spray cattle with DDT brought almost perfect results, according to County Agent R. M. Heath. Visiting herds 10 to 21 days after use of DDT he found them free from flies. Several farmers reported increased milk production, after flies had been killed.
